Working and studying.

The first three floors are used as a training centre, while the upper seven floors provide office space. Four basement floors provide space for storage and building services rooms as well as parking spaces for cars.

Impressions

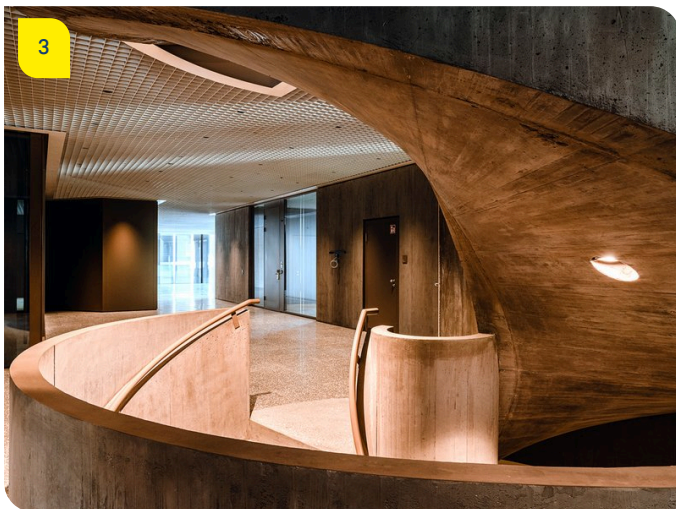

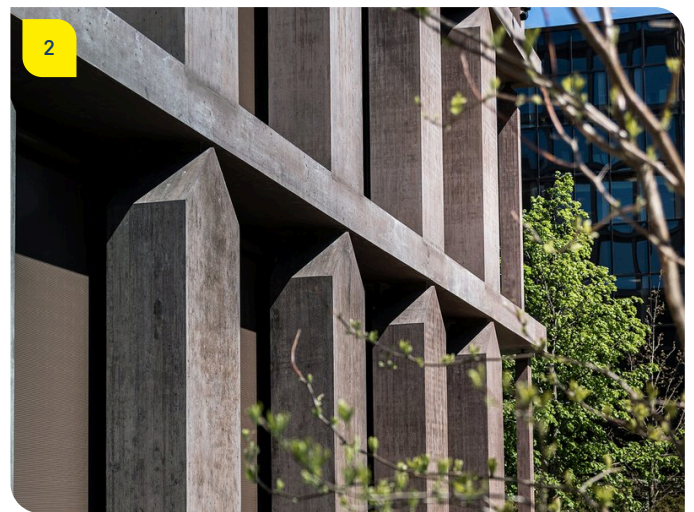

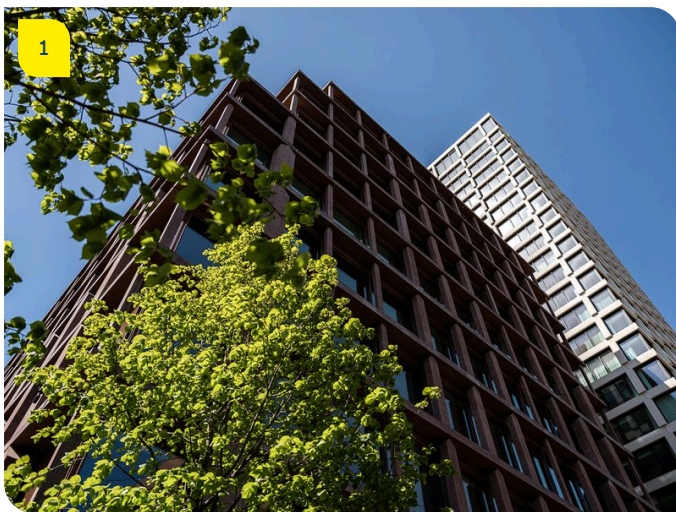

Image notes

1

Confident appearance.

The facade of the office building was designed using coloured concrete and glass.

Powerful elegance.

Dominant columns and floor slabs in earthy coloured concrete are a core element of the imposing building.

3

Representative spiral staircase.

The Baloise Group office building offers space for productive working and learning - and still plenty to discover, like this decorative spiral staircase made of concrete.
