More space for new ideas.

Prior to adding the new storeys, Balsberg had usable space of around 61,000m². Due to the three additional storeys, the building now has a total of around 82,000m² of high-quality floor space.

The greatest challenges on the project included minimising construction site emissions for the current tenants and protecting the crucial computer centres in the existing building.

To the press release “PORR creates more space for new ideas”

Impressions

Image notes

1

Elegance at the airport.

Three additional storeys create an additional 21,000m² of workspace.

2

A piece of nature in the inner courtyard.

Green areas and a water basin decorate the inner courtyard, which is framed by concrete and glass facades.
